this book provides the first synthetic review of the literature on cultural roads and itineraries providing a template for developing typologies and clarity on existing research it additionally develops a unique conceptual framework for understanding the social political ethical and spatial dynamics behind cultural roads and itineraries the book takes the discussion on cultural roads in two different directions firstly by taking a step back from tourism studies leisure studies and heritage studies in order to further the conversation on cultural roads with a broader set of disciplines namely those in the humanities and social sciences secondly through a series of broader theoretical reflections and considerations the book draws its focus back to the development of the cultural road and cultural itineraries with a new conceptual apparatus that can inspire new questions for research and new ideas for practice throughout the text concepts theories principles and practices are explored and explained through detailed case study analyses preserved buildings and historic districts museums and reconstructions have become an important part of the landscape of cities around the world beginning in the 1970s tokyo participated in this trend however repeated destruction and rapid redevelopment left the city with little building stock of recognized historical value late twentieth century tokyo thus presents an illuminating case of the emergence of a new sense of history in the city's physical environment since it required both a shift in perceptions of value and a search for history in the margins and interstices of a rapidly modernizing cityscape scholarship to date has tended to view historicism in the postindustrial context as either a genuine response to loss or as a cynical commodification of the past the historical process of tokyo's historicization suggests other interpretations moving from the politics of the public square to the invention of neighborhood community to oddities found and appropriated in the streets to the consecration of everyday scenes and artifacts as heritage in museums tokyo vernacular traces the rediscovery of the past—sometimes in unlikely forms—in a city with few traditional landmarks tokyo s rediscovered past was mobilized as part of a new politics of the everyday after the failure of mass politics in the 1960s rather than conceiving the city as national center and claiming public space as national citizens the post 1960s generation came to value the local places and things that embodied the vernacular language of the city and to seek what could be claimed as common property outside the spaces of corporate capitalism and the state
