on january 25 1996 the committee on youth development of the board on children youth and families convened a workshop to examine the implications of research on social settings for the design and evaluation of programs that serve youth the january workshop provided an opportunity for the committee to examine the strengths and limitations of existing research on interactions between social settings and adolescent development this research has drawn attention to the importance of understanding how when and where adolescents interact with their families peers and unrelated adults in settings such as home school places of work and recreational sites this workshop builds on previous work of the national research council and reiterates its support for integrating studies of social settings into more traditional research on individual characteristics family functioning and peer relationships in seeking to describe and explain adolescent behavior and youth outcomes not only does this report examine the strengths and limitations of research on social settings and adolescence and identify important research questions that deserve further study in developing this field but it also explores alternative methods by which the findings of research on social settings could be better integrated into the development of youth programs and services specific themes include the impact of social settings on differences in developmental pathways role expectations and youth identity and decision making skills as well as factors that contribute to variations in community context drawing on two decades of interviews and ethnographic fieldwork 1998 2018 this book presents a unique and multi faceted history of youth development in south africa through the lens of a south african non governmental organization ngo prominent in youth development from the mid 1980s until 2008 the book weaves history ethnography and discourse analysis to contextualize the joint enrichment project jep in the politics and history of south african education it examines jep s role leading up to and during south africa s transition to democracy its work and influence in post apartheid south africa and the continued relevance of its legacy to contemporary initiatives seeking to address youth development and social justice while jep repeatedly repositioned itself as an organization from fighting the effects of apartheid on young people to becoming a potential partner with the new african national congress anc led government its most significant role may have been to reposition people after tracing jep s twenty year history the book focuses on the participants in a 1998 youth work scheme exploring their learning experiences and the program s immediate impact on their lives it then revisits these participants twenty years later in 2018 analyzing their life trajectories after jep and comparing them with the life trajectories of former jep staff over the same period shedding light on broader patterns of socio economic reproduction and change in the country the book concludes with a discussion of a perennial paradox facing youth development institutions this book will be of great interest to academics researchers and post graduate students in the fields of education international development anthropology and african studies this volume builds understanding of practices in youth and community development that create or build social capital assets at the individual group and community levels the authors explore whether programs contribute to the development of social capital at the individual and community scales thereby fostering and enhancing positive youth development as well as community development it includes articles on defining and measuring social capital through instruments designed to document impact and also to engage program participants the authors then discuss program practices that build social capital in a wide range of youth development settings from community based service learning to 4 h community clubs finally they focus on building social capital in particular contexts including work in rural communities with the most vulnerable youth the volume is designed to help practitioners refine their dual focus on youth and community development clarify constructs that help translate the public value of positive youth development to community stakeholders provide examples of practices that link youth and youth programs more intentionally to the social relationships that knit communities together this is the 138th volume of new directions for youth development the jossey bass quarterly report series dedicated to bringing together everyone concerned with helping young people including scholars practitioners and people from different disciplines and professions moving the youth development message turning a vague idea into a moral imperative peter l benson and karen pittman the contagion of an idea in the past fifteen years countless programs agencies funding initiatives profes sionals and volunteers have embraced the term youth development linked more by shared passion than by formal membership or credentials these people and places have contributed to a wave of energy and activity not unlike that of a social movement with a multitude of people on the ground connecting to a set of ideas that give sustenance support and value to increasingly innovative efforts to build competent successful and healthy youth there are several particularly interesting dimensions to this movement first the youth development idea has the potential to draw people and organizations together across many sectors conferences and initiatives using youth development language attract increasingly eclectic audiences bringing together national youth organizations schools city county and state agencies police and juvenile justice workers clergy and committed citizens perhaps embedded in the youth development idea is a philosophy or a way that has created an intellectual and or spiritual home for actors across many settings however this happens it is clear that one of the powerful social consequences of the youth development idea is a connecting of the dots the weaving within and across city county state and of a tapestry of new relationships pt 1 positive youth development in diverse contexts during economic change pt 2 interventions to support and promote positive adaptation and development pt 3 research interventions and policy needs perhaps no other challenge is more pressing in creating developmentally tentative community and society the theme of this book series than mobilizing adults to play active constructive roles in the lives of children and adolescents in a society that too easily defaults to designing programs as cure alls for meeting young people's needs particular attention must be paid to understanding and mobilizing the kind of positive relational energy that prepares each successive generation to assume its place in society although programs and institutions certainly play important roles the key lies in the personal commitment involvement and investment of adults in young people's lives in mobilizing adults for positive youth development strategies for closing the gap between beliefs and behaviors e gil clary and jean e rhodes have assembled the insights of leading scholars from multiple disciplines and contexts for engaging a broad cadre of adults as allies for youth development as the editors write the question guiding the book is how can we most effectively encourage adults both individually and collectively to begin to behave differently with respect to the young people of a community to do so consistently and to do so in a variety of ways what is being proposed then is nothing less than a social movement that engages individuals small groups neighborhoods workplaces schools faith communities and broader social institutions in attending to the well being and healthy development of young people most contributions to this volume originated as papers given at an inter national conference on integrative perspectives on youth development held in berlin west in may 1983 this conference was part of a 6 year longi tudinal research program on the causes of substance use among adolescents in berlin which is now in its fourth year the conference title deliberately did not refer to substance use however its relevance to an explanation of drug related problem behavior was made evident to everyone invited to the conference the search for integrative perspectives in youth development originated in a dilemma that became obvious during the planning of intensive research on concomitants of substance use in the methodology for research on youth development there were two lines of thought that seemed completely unrelated to each other one line of thought was oriented toward the person leaving situational aspects aside while the other concentrated on ecological or situational determinants and thus neglected the aspects of development and internal processes the integration of both these directions seemed to be an unusually promising approach for any project that aimed to understand changes in the individual within a rapidly changing urban setting the best way to come closer to a resolution of that dilemma seemed to be an intensive exchange between the American and European scientific communities on this issue
