this book discusses the ways in which science the touchstone of reliable knowledge in modern society changed dramatically in the second half of the 20th century becoming less trustworthy through conflicts of interest and excessive competitiveness fraud became common enough that organized efforts to combat it now include a federal office of research integrity competent minority opinions are sometimes thereby suppressed with the result that policy makers the media and the public are presented with biased or incomplete information evidence tending to challenge established theories is sometimes rejected without addressing its substance while most would agree in the abstract that science can go wrong few would consider despite interesting contrary evidence that official consensus about the origins of the universe or the causes of global warming might be mistaken since 2005 approximately 70 000 asylum seeking refugees from sudan and eritrea have entered israel this along with the highly publicised anti african immigrant riots in israel in 2012 and 2014 and the current global refugee crisis has meant that the issue of african migration has become increasingly controversial here gilad ben nun looks at this phenomenon in its historical and contemporary contexts and compares it to the wider debates surrounding the palestinian refugees in the region and the concept of their right of return he argues that this newer african migration issue has forced israel to move from conceiving of itself as an exceptional state and now has to view itself as a more normal and universal entity ranging as far back as israel s important role in the the ratification drafting of the 1951 refugee convention and drawing on a variety of methodologies and sources ben nun offers a wide ranging legal social and historical examination of asylum in israel that sheds timely light onto themes of migration and identity across the middle east this is essential reading for legal historians and lawyers as well as scholars working on migration studies and the history and politics of the middle east this series of handbooks of linguistics and communication science is designed to illuminate a field which not only includes general linguistics and the study of linguistics as applied to specific languages but also covers those more recent areas which have developed from the increasing body of research into the manifold forms of communicative action and interaction for classic linguistics there appears to be a need for a review of the state of the art which will provide a reference base for the rapid advances in research undertaken from a variety of theoretical standpoints while in the more recent branches of communication science the handbooks will give researchers both an overview and orientation to attain these objectives the series will aim for a standard comparable to that of the leading handbooks in other disciplines and to this end will strive for comprehensiveness theoretical explicitness reliable documentation of data and findings and up to date methodology the editors both of the series and of the individual volumes and the individual contributors are committed to this aim the languages of publication are english german and french the main aim of the series is to provide an appropriate account of the state of the art in the various areas of linguistics and communication science covered by each of the various handbooks however no inflexible pre set limits will be imposed on the scope of each volume the series is open ended and can thus take account of further developments in the field this conception coupled with the necessity of allowing adequate time for each volume to be prepared with the necessary care means that there is no set time table for the publication of the whole series each volume will be a self contained work complete in itself the order in which the handbooks are published does not imply any rank ordering but is determined by the way in which the series is organized the editor of the whole series enlist a competent editor for each individual volume once the principal editor for a volume has been found he or she then has a completely free hand in the choice of co editors and contributors the editors plan each volume independently of the others being governed only by general formal principles the series editor only intervene where questions of delineation between individual volumes are concerned it is felt that this modus operandi is best suited to achieving the objectives of the series namely to give a competent account of the present state of knowledge and of the perception of the problems in the area covered by each volume
