andrew rogeron is one of the most important and influential archaeologists currently working in east anglia this collection will be essential reading for those interested in the history and archaeology of norfolk and suffolk in the interpretation of artefacts within their landscape contexts and in the material culture of the middle ages

winner of the 2016 george bari□iu prize in the mortuary archaeology of the medieval banat 10th 14th centuries silviu □□□ highlights the interactions between different ethnic groups as reflected in burial customs and funerary practices the book will deal with the Banat as a whole as opposed to the Romanian, Serbian or Hungarian parts of the region since the modern political borders are not identical with the cultural boundaries in the Middle Ages. On a more general level, the goal of this book is to analyse the social dynamics in the region. The author rejects the idea that any of the archaeological cultures identified in the Banat, e.g. the Bjelo Brdo culture, may be associated with any single ethnic group. Winner of the 2016 George Barișiu Prize from the Romanian Academy for outstanding contribution to the development of Romanian culture and science in the area of history and archaeology, the prize named after the towering figure of George Barișiu (1812–1893), a nineteenth-century Romanian political and cultural life and former president of the Academy, is awarded for originality of the work, its contribution to its field and its impact at the national level of the field development.

The Anglo-Saxon cemetery at Buckland, Dover, was discovered when a new housing estate was being constructed in 1951. It was excavated by Professor Evison between 1951 and 1953. The cemetery, of some 170 graves, dates from the late fifth to the middle of the eighth century. Professor Evison's expertise in the study of glass jewellery and weapons ensures that there is a penetrating analysis of this important site and interesting ideas are proposed for the layout and phasing of the cemetery. A comprehensive discussion of the finds from the graves reveals that although the Buckland cemetery belongs to the period of pagan tradition of burial with grave goods, there is some evidence of Christian influences and rites. Contact with Frankish territory in France, Belgium and the Rhineland seems to have been maintained throughout the period of use of the cemetery, and Frankish grave goods formed an important element in the material culture of the people buried there. However, by the late sixth century, local Kentish craftsmen were producing a significant amount of the jewellery found in the graves. Professor Evison places the Buckland cemetery in its local context by examining contemporary finds from other sites in the area around Dover.

presents finds from thirty seven graves at the roman cemetery at nemesbod hungary which consisted of mainly cremation but also of some inhumation burials detailed analysis of grave goods bronze vessels pottery glass personal accessories lamps etc provides a study of burial customs and their evolution
